A TASTE OF SUMMER...

June is a great time to be a dog owner in the CLE. It's warm but not humid, the days are longer and muddy paw season has given way to Paws on the Patio! From a relaxing cup of Joe to a complete meal, we're dishing up dog-friendly patios for your summer bucket list, along with some al fresco dog-dining pointers.

CLE dog dad Sam McNulty has several dog-friendly establishments on this list, so we sat down with him to learn more about his transformation of W. 25th St., and if his dog, Bo, likes beer as much as he does.

And if you're a single dog mom or dad looking for a 2-legged plus one, check out our Dating with Dogs article to see if any of this sounds oh so familiar to you. Spoiler alert: Like me, like my dog.

Finally, also on the menu for June is National Take Your Dog to Work Week. We sat down with the Corporate Canine to find out how we can convince our bosses that a pooch at work program is a doggone good idea.

Dining, dating and dogs at work--doesn't get much better than that! Enjoy this taste of summer.

It takes a pack!

ASK THE TRAINER

BY ADRIENNE BROCKWAY

Q. "I recently adopted a dog who needs some basic training, but is too anxious to do well in class. Is there something I can do to make the learning experience more rewarding for both of us?"

A. Consider using Tellington TTouch® as part of your training methodology and lifestyle. Tellington TTouch is a practice that uses light, meaningful touch and body awareness as it builds trust, confidence and the bond between you and your dog (or other animals). And, as this relationship is growing, the ability to find moments of full relaxation is also developed. The use of TTouch aids in improving physical, mental and emotional balance, even in stressful situations.

TTouch can be integrated in the daily routines of every life stage of your dog--from the youngest puppy through the most mature of senior dogs. Using TTouch provides techniques that address the challenges of teething, tools to build confidence and social skills, methods to improve the communication needed for better leash walking, offers support for noise phobias and separation anxiety, and gives the ability to touch and soothe achy and weakening muscles and joints.

Dogs who are adopted from a rescue situation often find themselves unsure of how to respond to their new life. It is not uncommon to see a dog frequently "shut down" when they encounter an unfamiliar situation, or they perhaps fall into a "flight" response, or even "fool around" or avoidance. The things that trigger these responses can happen in a second, but it may take hours, days or even weeks for the dog to come out of it. TTouch is an outstanding way to help the dog stay "present" during these challenging times. With the human providing the mindful touch to open channels of communication throughout the dog's body, we begin to see the dog break from the old, habitual patterns of response, and find the confidence to face these events instead.

TTouch is practiced throughout the world on all animals and humans, and was originally developed for work with horses. It can be learned in classes or workshops, through private consultations, by watching videos or reading books. It can be done anytime and anywhere. And there is no special equipment required to do TTouch. To find out more information about Tellington TTouch®, visit TTouch.com.

Adrienne Brockway is a Tellington TTouch practitioner who has worked extensively with dogs from all different backgrounds, as well as with many other types of companion animals, including cats, rabbits, birds, ferrets and reptiles. She is the owner of Animal Zen in Cleveland Heights, providing pet care services, consultations, and basic skills and enrichment classes. Animal Zen also carries a wide array of natural pet foods, treats, supplements, household supplies, active gear and toys.

From the Cage to the Couch

In late January, Amos was found tied out in a public space in Lorain, freezing and emaciated. The Pit Bull Terrier mix was taken to Lorain County Dog Kennel, who called in Fido's Companion Inc. rescue to assist with this very sad case. At intake, Amos weighed just 23 pounds--less than half his ideal weight. Besides being starved, Amos had huge open wounds on his back end and lacerations on his paws.

It was a long journey, but fast forward five months, and this 2-year-old pooch has had a true metamorphosis. He now weighs 53 pounds and is living in Lorain as a permanent member of one of Fido's Companion's dog trainer's packs. He even has a human little brother who he adores.

DOG IN THE CITY

BY AMANDA ROUSH & BELLA
from Dog Life in CLE

By June, we are outdoors all the time in the CLE. Whether it's hiking through the Metroparks, shopping at Crocker Park, meeting up with friends at a dog park or checking out all the outdoor events, there is much to look forward to! This month it's all about the events. Last year we attended the New Leash on Life walk at Edgewater to fundraise for Northeast Ohio SPCA, and this year's walk will be even bigger than before. (Dog Life in CLE will have a booth at this event.) Bark in the Park with the Lake County Captains lets you bring your dog to three games over the season. Night Market CLE lets you and your dog experience Asian culture and shopping after the sun goes down. Cleveland Flea is one of my all-time favorite events to take Bella, shopping for vintage and urban finds from local vendors and trying new and exciting local food all in one spot. Don't let the new $1 admission fee stop you; this event is well worth the price!

Check out this month's Dog in the City dog-friendly places and events:

Events:

1. 13th Annual New Leash on Life Walk (June 3, 8 a.m.-Noon, Edgewater Park)
2. Night Market CLE (June 30, 5-11 p.m., 2136 Rockwell Ave. Cleveland)
3. Cleveland Flea (June 10, 9 a.m.-4 p.m., 3615 Superior Ave., Cleveland)
4. Bark in the Park (June 4, starting at 1:30 p.m. at the Lake County Captains game)

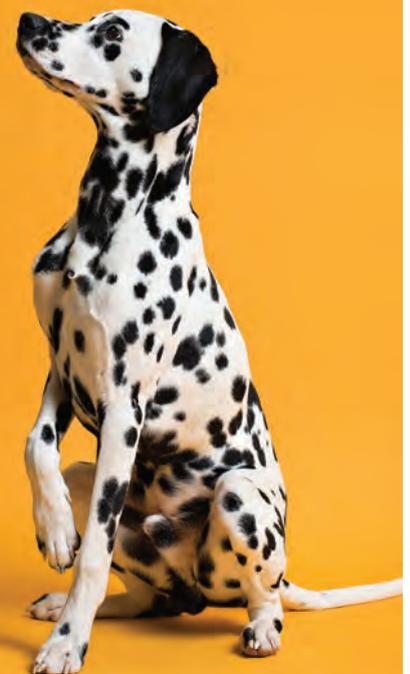

Blogger, dog mom, medical professional, Etsy shop owner and animal rescue fundraiser, Amanda Roush is the resource for dog-friendly places and events in the CLE. Visit www.doglifeincle.com or follow @doglifeincle to find out more. And don't forget, 20% of Amanda's Dog Life in CLE Etsy sales benefit local animal shelters. The shop features items for those who love dogs, Ohio and Cleveland!

JUNE PRODUCTS: PATIO DISTRACTIONS

The glorious days of summer are here! Warm days and nights, trips to the beach and hiking in the Metroparks are all great warm weather activities. It's also the season to dine al fresco, or on the patio. To make it even more fun, many local restaurants are dog-friendly when it comes to their outdoor dining spaces. So how do you keep your dog busy and well behaved while surrounded by people eating? The trick is to give them something tastier and more interesting than the food and humans around them. This is where high-quality chews and puzzle toys come in handy.

▶ The Earth Animal Company makes No Hide Chews. Available in three flavors and three sizes, these long-lasting, healthy chews are completely digestible and very flavorful. No Hides are made from humanely raised chicken, beef or wild caught salmon. What looks like rawhide is made from brown rice flour, olive oil, eggs, beef or chicken cartilage, or for the salmon flavor, vegetable glycerin. These ingredients make up a chew that is not only long-lasting, but healthy, too!

▶ Bully Sticks are another quality, long-lasting chew. Made from dried beef tendon, they are also digestible and great for your dog's teeth. Always look for bully sticks that are made and sourced in the USA. They should be odorless; bully sticks that smell badly may have been treated with chemical preservatives. Bully sticks are available in different sizes, so choose one that will last your dog through dinner.

A great new puzzle toy is the Orbee Tuff Link from Planet Dog in Maine. This toy is made for small, highly flavored treats, and can be put together in a variety of configurations for increasing the level of difficulty. Dehydrated or freeze-dried meat treats work very well with this toy--the aroma will keep your dog engaged while he or she figures out the puzzle. ▶

▶ Another puzzle toy that the Baker dogs absolutely love is the West Paw Toppl. One of the great things you can do with this one is put unsweetened apple sauce or pumpkin in it and then freeze it. Your dog gets a cold, tasty treat and you get a busy, focused dog. This toy is also made in the USA and is dishwasher safe, so cleaning is a breeze.

DOG OWNER AT A GLANCE

Sam McNulty,
Dad to Bo (Labradoodle)

Breeder or Shelter/Rescue? Rescue.

Flexi or Web? Web.

Regular or Raw? All-organic regular.

Free Feed or Fixed Meals? Fixed.

Your Bed or Dog Bed? Bo always slept on the dog bed until Ciara decided she wanted to snuggle with him in bed, so the boss made the executive decision to let him sleep in the bed.

Dog Park or Metropark? Metropark. Because nothing is better than a hike in the Metroparks! And it's Bo's happy place.

Doggie Daycare or Daily Walk? Bo comes to work with me every day, and my colleagues all spoil him with love.

Trainer or Homeschool? Homeschool. Ciara recently taught Bo to lie down. Who says you can't teach an old dog new tricks?

Pet Sitter or Boarding? We've got a few friends that love Bo and hang out with him when we travel. They take such good care of him, we suspect that he may enjoy vacation as much as we do.

Purebred or Mix? He's one of the new breed mixes: Labradoodle. We're not sure how much Poodle vs. how much Labrador.

..... Dishing with

SAM MCNULTY

ON BO AND BEER

By Karen Uthe-Semancik

While most college students are hitting the books and the bars, Sam McNulty was also launching his first restaurant on Cleveland State University's campus. He opened the aptly named Café 101 as a CSU urban planning major during his junior year.

The hardworking McNulty ran that business, and several others, for eight years before taking some time off to travel abroad and gain insight into what was next for the Cleveland Hts. native. While backpacking through India and enjoying an evening of beer drinking with a Polish guy who ran a Belgian-style bar in Australia (you can't make this stuff up!), he was convinced Cleveland was also ready for an establishment that served his favorite Belgian beers. The idea for McNulty's Bier Markt was born.

"I enjoyed the hospitality industry and decided to use restaurants and breweries as a tool to rebuild the Ohio City neighborhood."

And he has done just that. And for most of the last four years, with his trusty Labradoodle, Bo, by his side. The 6-year-old rescue pooch goes to work with McNulty every day, and in fact, was curled up under his desk during this interview.

After Bier Markt's success came Bar Cento, Speakeasy, Market Garden Brewery and Nano Brew. Opening five restaurants and bars and a production brewery, McNulty has single-handedly been credited by many for the transformation of W. 25th St. But, just like his well-mannered sidekick, Bo, McNulty is loyal to those who have been part of the success story.

"I had a lot of help from my business partners and so many other great business owners and residents."

And that success has caught the attention of businesspeople and dog owners alike. His entrepreneurial spirit has graced the pages of publications like The Wall Street Journal, while his establishments are favorites with active dog owners in the CLE because of the laid-back, dog-friendly atmosphere.

"McNulty's Bier Markt has been dog friendly since it opened back in 2005. People thought we were going to get in trouble or have problems with the dogs. Instead, it was so well received and really helped launch the bar. Cleveland is definitely getting more and more dog friendly every year," says McNulty.

He adds that all of his establishments' patios and beer gardens are also dog friendly.

Another place McNulty and wife, Ciara, senior account executive at The Adcom Group (a downtown marketing agency), enjoy taking Bo to is the Cleveland Metroparks. Bo especially loves the dog beach at Edgewater Park. McNulty says Bo has some separation anxiety, so he pretty much goes everywhere with mom and dad. And they're very okay with that.

"He loves kayaking with Ciara and me. His happy place is anywhere in the Metroparks or snuggling with Ciara," says McNulty.

So has Bo sampled any of dad's hoppy creations?

"The apple fell pretty far from the tree in the beer department. The little guy turns his nose up at beer. More for me, I guess."

It may not be from beer, but when Bo does have a stomachache, this dog dad's tip is pumpkin.

"Anytime Bo has an upset stomach, we open a can of 100% pumpkin and give him some. Works every time!"

So what's next for the avid bicyclist, active dog owner and ambassador of W. 25th St.?

"Ciara and I bought some land in Duck Island (a neighborhood in between Ohio City and Tremont) a few years ago and are building seven condos with our good friend and talented architect, Gary Ogrocki of Dimit & Associates. They are a 3-minute walk from Market Garden Brewery."

Cheers!

DINING with YOUR DOG, al fresco

More and more places in the CLE are offering dog-friendly patios for enjoying a pint and a small plate with our pooches. Check out our list, and let us know if we missed your fave spot. Cheers and bone appétit!

WHAT'S THIS?

Whether it's the special doggie brunch menu or the dog-friendly staff who never lets the dog water bowls go empty, these 10 spots earn top dog honors for Dogs in the CLE blogger Ann McDonald.

Paws on the Patio TIPS

We are lucky to live in a city that has so many options for dog-friendly dining and drinking! Although I am a big advocate of hitting the town with your dog, I also realize it's not meant for every dog. Before you set out for a dog-friendly patio, it's important to consider a few things:

- Training Make sure your dog is under control and will listen to you if you need to correct him. We want to make sure that places stay dog friendly (and encourage more to become dog friendly!), so it's important your dog represents his kind well. Canine Good Citizen (CGC) courses can be helpful in teaching your dog the skills needed to behave nicely in public.
- Be Prepared Some places will provide a water bowl for your dog, but not all. It's always a good idea to bring a water bowl for your dog if you're out on a hot summer day. A toy or bone can also be a good idea to make the experience more fun for your dog.
- Know your dog As much as you may want to take your dog out with you, it may not be your dog's idea of fun. Some dogs get nervous by noises or crowds, or may act aggressively toward humans or other dogs if they get frightened. If you're new to dog-friendly dining, it may be a good idea start at a small patio or coffee shop where you can leave quickly, if needed.
- Know your patio A lot of patios are technically dog friendly, but that doesn't mean it's going to be good for every dog. A few patios I've been to only have a couple of tables in a tiny, cramped space, which is great if you have a small, low-key dog, but not great for a larger, more excitable dog. It's a good idea to check out a patio first before bringing your dog.

And, always ask if you can bring your dog on to a patio! This is very important. Some places may change their policies, or it may depend on the crowd whether they will want your dog. Better to avoid an awkward situation by asking first.

Diane Pekarek, of Corporate Canine, and her Pit Bulls Rosa and Zozo

Trending: Work Places Going to the Dogs

By Susan Spisak

Imagine being able to take your dog to work... wouldn't you be a happier camper?

I know I would've been if my super-chill Golden had accompanied me to work when I was employed by that high-stress company many moons ago. .

I recently talked with Diane Pekarek, owner of the Medina-based Corporate Canine, about dogs in the workplace, and she said it's a growing trend among forward-thinking corporations. Google, Clif Bar, Bissell, Tito's Handmade Vodka, Amazon, Replacements, Ltd., Ben & Jerry's (they call their work pack the K-9 to 5'ers), Columbus' BrewDog and Cleveland's Marcus Thomas LLC all encourage employees with well-mannered canines to bring them along.

Unfortunately, few Northeast Ohio companies have an open-door policy for pooches unless they're service animals. But Pekarek and her Corporate Canine's Dog@Work program, with the tagline "improving productivity and morale in the workplace," is striving to change that. In fact, two local companies have already decided to implement her Dog@Work program. (She declined to name them, however, since, at press time, their employees hadn't yet been apprised of this cool addition. Won't they be pleasantly surprised?!)

While Pekarek loved her previous careers--she has a combined 20 years' experience as a senior manager and educator at Cleveland Metroparks Zoo and the Greater Cleveland Aquarium--she knows workers are strained because of long, crazy hours. She believes dogs, with their therapeutic abilities, can be an asset to most businesses. So in August of 2016, she went with her gut and launched Corporate Canine part-time, and this past January, made it her full-time gig.

Pekarek visited companies that already had pet programs in place, such as Marcus Thomas LLC, an award-winning, fully integrated marketing communications agency on Cleveland's eastside. She spoke with Lori Pennica Hedrick, who has the cool title of Partner, Culture and Coaching.

"Lori said to me, 'Diane, I cannot imagine not having a dog-at-work program. It's part of our culture.'"

Elizabeth Ballash Abate and her husband, Chris Abate, take their dog, Milton, to work at Marcus Thomas. Abate told me she values the privilege and added, "I feel Milton's living a much more rich life at Marcus Thomas than if we had to leave him at home every day. And we are, too. He also has friends here--both human and canine."

Lisa Conklin, Public Relations Manager for Replacements, Ltd. in McLeansville, North Carolina, was happy to share the success of their pet program with me. She said that dogs--as well as a variety of other pets--are part of their workplace. Their founder and owner, Bob Page, brings his two Dachshunds to work and allows staffers to do the same. Conklin added, "I think pets in the workplace is one of our best perks."

Pekarek emphasized that this inexpensive, yet terrific incentive, can attract staff. It reduces absenteeism and turnover, especially with millennials--they want their fur kids around (boomers do, too)! She said it's been proven that employers' medical costs decrease, as dogs lower stress and blood pressure. And a company that allows dogs is considered more approachable by outsiders.

A Dog@Work program must be rolled out properly, however. Pekarek customizes programs with HR or the powers that be. After a facility assessment and staff training, she oversees an after-hours dry run before the company goes "live," allowing the dogs to meet, greet and sniff. And there's follow-up to ensure the program's working smoothly.

If you're interested in a Dog@Work program, talk with colleagues. To get the conversation going, mention that June 23 is Pet Sitters International's "Take Your Dog To Work Day" (www.petsit.com/takeyourdog) and gauge their impressions on the concept. If there's positive feedback, give Pekarek a shout... www.thecorporatecanine.com. 🐾

Dating with Dogs

Because if my dog doesn't like you, neither do I!

By Megan Petrello

the unconditional love and the shoe that may or may not be there in the morning.

Going to dog parks has always peaked my dating interest. For me, a dog walking into a park with his cute dad is the equivalent fantasy of a woman with hair blowing in slow motion while Dream Weaver plays in the background. And since our dogs are (usually) better looking and have better personalities than we do, they are a perfect way to make that first move. I realize I'm more at ease when Roo is around, and I can let him be that cute, well-behaved pup and take all the credit.

Nowadays, his arthritis and age have gotten the best of him, so I visit dog-friendly bars and restaurants where Roo can sprawl out and help me pick up people from the recline position. Then we can reel in someone who likes sending funny dog memes all day...because that's all dating is about nowadays anyway, right?

Having a dog my whole adult dating life has also entitled me to my very own Get-Out-Of-The-Date-If-Things-Go-Wrong Card. My very own fairy godfather with a handy excuse to high tail it out of there. (Cover officially blown by accepting the assignment to write this article.)

Roo has taught me a lot about love and patience over the 10 years I've had him. I've realized that dogs don't just pick any pup to join their packs and I shouldn't either. If someone doesn't like dogs, it's easy to say they won't like me because it's an immediate deal breaker. As Bill Murray put it, "I'm suspicious of people who don't like dogs, but I trust a dog when it doesn't like a person."

There is no greater feeling than being loved and accepted unconditionally, and that's what my dog has always provided, ideally someday a human will, too! (Maybe just a little less hairy though.)

Megan is a PR professional who lives in Tremont with her 10-year-old boxer, Roo. When she's not going on bad dates, she volunteers with animal rescue organizations, attempts DIY projects and enjoys attending Cleveland sporting events.

Dating today can sometimes feel like a cruel joke orchestrated by Ashton Kutcher and his Punk'd Crew. If I had a nickel for every date I wish I would have avoided, I'd be a very rich dog lady. Thankfully, having your dog (my Roo) around to roll with makes it a lot more fun and interesting.

Most single dog owners will tell you, finding someone who also has one certainly makes things easier. You build that common ground right away. Is mine the better dog? Sure. Will I eventually like your dog more than you? Most likely. But the point is, they understand the schedules, the clothes that become fur accessories, the dreaded feeling of "dog guilt",
